One of the teachers now on the staff of the high school at High River is Miss Gilhooly, at one time a teacher in Vulcan.

There is a land deal in the district to record this week. Mr. W. O. Torgerson has sold his farm a short distance out of town to Mr. Robert Fair. This property adjoins present land possessions of the new owner. It was a cash transaction.

Among the Vulcan students who have returned to study is Miss Marian Lebeau, who has enrolled at the Vancouver Art School, which is affiliated with the University of British Columbia.

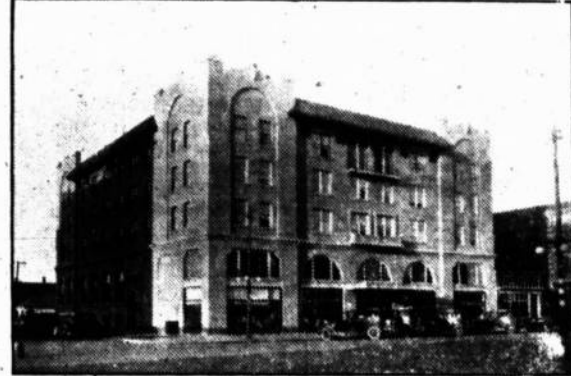

Regular services at Church of Christ on September 30th. Remember the preaching service begins at 10:30 and Bible school at 11:30. We invite you to attend. Minister will be present both morning and evening. Good music and helpful sermons. Bible school rally day on October 14th. Get ready for it now.—O. P. Burris, minister.

Vulcan and district is reminded that they will have opportunity to participate in the general campaign being promoted in support of the Red Cross. The appeal of the organization will be presented in Vulcan by one of the most talented public speakers among the women who are giving service to Red Cross. Announcement will be made in due time.

The girls of the Vulcan basketball club have made a voluntary contribution of fifty dollars to the Vulcan Municipal Hospital, the amount to be used as an aid in the purchase of equipment for the institution. This club of athletic young ladies have created a record in the matter of financing their organization, and a sport club with the money and the disposition to give in such manner is surely a marvel. Praise be to them, and their action an example to others.

The Legion are again to the fore with a boxing card of merit for Saturday, October 6th. Mel Cowie, the holder, and Frank Jackson, the challenger, will meet for the lightweight championship of Western Canada. This will be a "go-round" and the boys will weigh in on the afternoon of the fight. Stewart Speechley, of Chilliwack, and Kubie of Lomond, will furnish the semi-windup. These boys are evenly matched and should produce a fast and interesting bout. Young Balstead, of Lomond, and Kid Alin, of Portland, will fight four rounds, and as both are young and ambitious, they can be expected to make a good show. The Meyers twins from Blackie will again give an exhibition, and no fan will want to miss seeing these clever and popular boys. The usual junior prelims will open the card. The promoters state that they are putting on this card in the hope of materially assisting in equipping the "gym," and if the attendance is not satisfactory the boxing shows will be discontinued.

The third time this week the fire engine was called to service, and a quick response was made to the changing of the alarm. Fire in a field on the Jamison farm threatened to become dangerous.

Mr. K. R. McLean, R.D., of Anderson & McLean, 208 Eighth Ave., W., Calgary, wishes to announce his semi-monthly visits to the King drug store, Vulcan, Saturday, September 29th, and Saturday, October 13th.

The Canadian Legion at Drumheller have let the contract for the excavation for a new club house to be erected. E. E. Hatson is being credited with much of the promotion of this enterprise. This is Bert Hatson, who at one time was officially connected with the Legion at Vulcan.

Changes are being made in connection with the Roman Catholic Church at Vulcan, which includes the transfer of Rev. Father McLaughlin to Calgary. When the details are available report will be made in these columns. Father McLaughlin has for some considerable time been in ill health, but is now in splendid form.

The local branch of the Women's Institute made a community contribution in sponsoring the address given in Vulcan on Monday afternoon by Miss Amey Conroy, R.N. The speaker has had a wide experience in war and peace-time as a nurse, and in the discussion of "Infectious Diseases," was plain and practical, making valuable the information presented. There was a good attendance of local ladies.

The enrolment of many pupils on Monday was a splendid start on the establishment of the Vulcan branch of the Alice Murdoch school of dancing. The start and prospects are very gratifying to Miss Murdoch, who is an enthusiastic and conscientious devotee of the profession, and has just returned from New York following a course of instruction in the best and latest of the art, and the talent of the young lady is well known locally. Vulcan has in the past produced several very fine dance students, and the interest manifested at the present would indicate that ere long young and old will be on their toes in pursuit of an art that is healthful as well as delightful.

Vulcan has been selected as one of the places at which there is to be an auction of school lands. The sale will be held in November, under the Dominion department of the Interior. Lands to be offered at this point are defined as follows in the general announcement: Vulcan—Comprising parts of Townships 14 to 19 inclusive lying west of Bow river, Ranges 17 to 18 inclusive, W. 4th M., and Townships 14 to 19 inclusive, Ranges 19 to 26 inclusive, W. 4th M. Inspectors are now engaged in the work of valuing the lands, and when the dates of sale are definitely decided upon due notice thereof will be given by poster and through the papers.

The boys, under Harry Ferguson, will likely indulge in baseball and hockey. The prospects for a real school hockey team are very good. The members of this team are Allan McAskie, Norman Lockhart and Robert Marshall. The club is under the supervision of Mr. Irvine, principal of schools, who is enthusiastic over it and is helping in every way to make it a great success.

Born, in Vulcan, on September 22, 1928, to Mr. and Mrs. John McLagan, of Vulcan, a daughter.

Mr. Wm. Butchart, junior, one of our popular young men of real ability, is now employed as a draughtsman in one of the government departments at Edmonton. He ranked high as a student in the profession and will make good in the practice of same.

Progress is rapid and quite apparent on the two principal building enterprises in Vulcan, the municipal hospital and the nurses' residence in connection therewith and the Legion memorial hall. The weather conditions have been just about perfect and the builders have been making the best of their opportunity.

The dance on Friday night last, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was an event of more than usual pleasure, as well as a financial success. The profits are given at better than sixty dollars. Money possessed by this institution is in good hands and is always well spent.

The Drumheller lightweight boxer Louis Kwiczak, who has performed three or four times satisfactorily in Vulcan, is booked for a battle in Lethbridge, and quite correctly is announced as the boy who never fails to give the fans a run for their money, even in defeat. Vulcan will wish him well.

The best grain record thus far reported direct to The Advocate this season is that established on the farm premises of Mr. Andrew Will in the Vulcan district near Milo. Seven ty-five acres produced an average of sixty-one bushels of wheat per acre and the grain graded one northern. Is there any place anywhere can excel this production.

Constable Davies, of the A. P. P. Lethbridge, and formerly located at Vulcan, is to be transferred to Redlaw to take the place of Constable McDonald there, who will be attached to headquarters at Lethbridge. Mrs. Davies and children have been on a visit for some time to the Old Country and are due to return at a near date.

Vulcan will now have five students at the University of Alberta in Edmonton. They are Glen Robbie, Eleanor Jennijohn, Joe Korczynski, Norman Jennijohn, and Dorothy Martin, the last named being attached to the hospital of the institution, and all the others following as many different lines of study. These students will no doubt maintain the splendid record that Vulcan has established in the institutions of learning. The Robbie family have removed to make their residence in the capital city.

Responding with remarkable speed to the ringing of the fire alarm on Friday evening, just following the fall of darkness, there was the assembly of fire-fighting apparatus, citizens and cars at the Roy Ferguson horse barns in the vicinity of the depot. Flames were discovered in a section of one of the lofts, presumably the result of the carelessness of someone without abode had made convenience of the place to rest a while. Luckily the fire was early seen and quickly subdued, for there is fast fuel in this old building to make a furious fire, with the results that might have been only to be conjectured. This building has been much dilapidated since the cyclone of a year ago.

Vulcan surely has not said its last word in a matter of importance. The call for a meeting at this point to consider the proposition of the establishment of what is termed a health unit did not develop much interest or secure any considerable attendance. However, the subject is worthy of study and thought, and likely more will be known of it. Dr. Covington, representing the Rockefeller Foundation, and Dr. Jenkins, of the provincial health board, presented many details of the contemplated scheme, which was a co-operative effort of municipalities, with twenty-five per cent of the cost paid by the Rockefeller Foundation and a like amount by the province. The proposed area of the unit would include High River, Okotoks, Vulcan, Blackie, Nanton, Cayley, and the territory surrounding. The staff would consist of one physician, trained in special health service; two public nurses, or one nurse and one sanitary inspector, and clerical staff. The upkeep of such a unit, which would serve a population of fourteen thousand or more, would amount to approximately ten thousand dollars a year. Briefly, the activities would consist of, child welfare examination of all children at least annually, efforts to prevent spread of disease, investigation of spread of contagious diseases; holding of clinics for examination of middle-aged; public health education; immunization of children to disease; inspection of food supplies. Vulcan will yet be required to say what they are prepared to do about this thing.

WHAT IS ANGER

What is anger? It is exactly the same as throwing a machine into high speed. Sudden, unexpected and outrageous demands are made on the heart, the lungs, the muscles and nerves. You can stretch a small rubber band until it encircles a large package. But the stretching must be gradually and carefully applied. In a sense the rubber must be coaxed. A sudden pull will break it. Anger and giving way to anger place a sudden strain upon tissues unprepared for it. The blood vessel wall is placed under sudden and terrific pressure. What happens? The tissues give way and there is a rupture of the vessel.

AIRGUNS ILLEGAL FOR MINORS

We have been requested to call attention to the law that minors under 16 years are forbidden to have airguns as well as any other gun or pistol, and that anyone who gives or sells an airgun or ammunition for one of any minor under 16 years of age is liable to prosecution. Sec. 119 of the Criminal Code of Canada says: "Everyone is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars who sells any firearm or gives or sells any pistol or airgun, or any ammunition therefor, to a minor under the age of sixteen years unless he establishes to the satisfaction of the justice before whom he is charged that he used reasonable diligence in endeavoring to ascertain the age of the minor, before making such sale or gift and that he had good reason to believe that such minor was not under the age of sixteen years."

SPEAKS ON ADVERTISING

W. E. Lord, prominent Red Deer business man spoke to the weekly newspaper publishers of Alberta assembled in convention at Lethbridge recently on "The Merchants Views on Advertising." Given a satisfactory subscription list in the local trading zone, there was no more effective medium of advertising than the news paper, he said. He was of the opinion that it would pay any merchant to spend up to fifty per cent. of the rental value of his premises. "It is essential to advertise regularly and consistently and by the latter I mean 52 times a year in your newspapers," said Mr. Lord. "With the exception of millinery, I know of no line of merchandise that will permit of slackening between seasons, unless the merchant would face the dull season then that he fears." Mr. Lord also told the publishers that they could return home with a message of assurance to the small merchant that if he knows his line, he has nothing to fear from the inroads of the chain store.

DISTRESS SIGNALS

It has been suggested by the London Opinion, that motorists would do well to have a system of flag signals, like yachts, to be hoisted at need, giving an indication of the intention and predicament of the motorists. For example a yellow pennant, meaning "This is my first car." Yellow pennant with blue squares "This is my first time alone." A black flag with skull and crossbones "Come for a race." Red and black flag "My brakes won't work." Red and green "My steering is uncertain." The yellow quarantine flag indicates "I am slightly intoxicated." Fine signals might be arranged meaning "I have no gas," "Meeting in the back seat," etc. Then as the greatest triumph a large square flag of red signifying "My wife is driving."

A SERMONETTE

Clarence Darrow, the famous American lawyer, who is an avowed agnostic, says there is nothing for him now but work, and after that forgetfulness. Faith, or lack of faith, like that, is no asset. If he cannot offer something better, he should refrain from his attempt to destroy the faith of those who hold to the Christian belief of a life of bliss beyond the grave. Even if it turns out to be delusion, it is better than the despair of the "intellectual" since it helps the believer to live and helps him also to die. There may be faith in honest doubt as Tennyson says, but the doubt that takes away the crutches of a cripple and gives him nothing in return but work, and after that forgetfulness, is futile if not dishonest.

THRIVES ON DISAFFECTION

The Labor M.P. from England who told Canadians how to hold up the employers appeared to think that the movement in Britain was a success and that Labor unions in Canada would never succeed until they adopted the method, viz. putting Labor are not so sure that the scheme worked so successfully in Britain. At any rate, the Labor government did not last long. But this Labor M.P. is satisfied with conditions that produce his species, even though it may not produce a majority. He is glad to think that the unemployed who came to Canada are dissatisfied. He helps to make them so and to broadcast their dissatisfaction. If they have to return to Britain, they will return dissatisfied with the government that assisted them to come, and probably vote Labor.

THE SPIRIT MEDIUM

Dr. Conan Doyle says that he has had communication with Joseph Conrad and that the departed novelist wants Doyle to finish a book which he was writing when death interrupted. Doyle says it is an impossible task for him as it is not the sort of work to which he could do justice. Conrad knew his trade pretty well and we have to marvel that he should as an author have made such a choice of finisher. Dr. Doyle also claims to have had communication with Earl Haig two days after the Earl's death, which he forwarded to the bereaved family without eliciting a response. Wonder if he knows why? He is thoroughly sincere, and all that, but he shouldn't allow his communications to corrupt good manners.

PUBLICITY OF CRIME

There are some good people, with the best of motives, we admit, who are against newspapers reporting crimes. If this is made to apply to refraining as far as possible from going into gruesome details and from creating anything in the way of sensationalism there would be some argument to the objection. We have only to read what newspaper publicity has done in the arrest of the parties wanted in what is known as the Riverside farm murders in California to recognize what this publicity meant in the interests of law and justice, even though the crimes have to be brought home to those alleged to be guilty of them. This is a recent instance of how the newspapers have served society, and if we look into the history of the arrest of criminals we cannot but recognize the great use publicity given to crime has played. In what publicity has done in bringing those responsible for crimes to book, the newspapers have been of immense aid. This is a different thing to dishing up nauseous details. Apart from this, fear of publicity is often a greater deterrent of crime than the penalties attached to it. There are two sides to the question when it comes to the publicity of crime. It is not so much publicity as the way of handling the publicity of crime. Here the newspaper undoubtedly has a responsibility and it is a responsibility which the big majority of newspapers realize. It is a different thing to withholding all publicity of crime when we view the part publicity has taken in the detection of crime.—Lethbridge Herald.

STRONG ON RESOLUTIONS

The annual denominational conferences are considered important enough for a column or two of daily newspaper space, but the clerical delegates think the views they express and the resolutions they adopt are important enough to justify more space. They "resolute" on peace and war, the social evil, marriage and divorce, and all the things that "challenge," a favorite but hard-worked word with them. Some of them come out "solidly," year after year, for bone-dry prohibition although year by year the public pronounces against it. The lay delegates know more about this particular subject than the clericals do but for some reason they "fall" for the views of the clergy. Cromwell besought the Presbyterians of his day in the name of the Lord, to reflect that it was possible they might be wrong. His admonition was wasted, as it would be today on several denominational gatherings. world. Those are the things that can be adjusted if we will eliminate for a while strong party spirit in our political activities. What we desire is not to drift away from you, to sever our connection, or even to loosen the bonds. What we all desire is to be drawn closer together, to know one another better, to have common aims and ambitions, to teach the rising generations of our children that the great objective in life must be to make a contribution to the strengthening of the fibre and virility of the greatest force for good that the world has ever known."

FERGUSON'S SPEECH

The Lord Chief Justice of England was so impressed by a speech of Mr. Howard Ferguson, made while he was touring the Old Country, that he expressed the hope that it might be used as a lesson in every school in Britain. We quote the concluding words of the speech: "Some people take the view that it is a great disadvantage that the British Empire is scattered in so many portions of the world. On the other hand, I believe it to be a distinct advantage. Not only have you the strength of outposts strategically placed all over the world, but you have all the diversity of climatic and economic conditions, and that, if properly husbanded will guarantee us a diversity of production that will make us invulnerable against any country in the world."

General Chang, the Chinese leader not only lost a battle last week, but he has also failed to locate twenty of his wives. Only eight wives can be found. He states that the twenty wives are a more serious loss than is the battle. The world is skeptical.

THE FARMER-GROCER

Writer Tells Experience of Farmer Who Became a Grocer

Farmers who hanker for an opportunity of giving up the farm for a commercial career might well ponder the experience of a writer in the Ohio Stockman and Farmer who tells how, one day, a few years ago, he took some onions to the grocer with whom he dealt and was paid seven cents a pound for them. "An hour later he saw his onions displayed, conspicuously in front of the store, at fifteen cents per pound, and his wrath rose. He had heard a great deal about middlemen and the enormous profits they make, but never before had he experienced such highway robbery, at least that is what he called it to himself. Shortly after he had a chance to trade his farm for a flourishing grocery store and a big house in a little country town and two thousand dollars to boot. He turned middleman on the spot. The owner was old and wanted to retire, as the life was too strenuous for him. At least that was the reason the storekeeper gave for wanting the farm. He could rent that out, but he couldn't rent a grocery store, he said.

The farmer turned middleman bought onions at seven cents per pound and sold them at fifteen. He bought green peas from the farmers and sold them for twice as much as he paid. But between buying and selling hangs a tale. The peas shrivelled and decreased in weight and the onions rotted because of poor weather conditions, so that he was thankful to come out even on both. He found that green vegetables are the most risky things of earth, unless it be fruit. You can lose all the profit for a week off other things by having a few crates of berries turn soft before you can sell them or peas get slimy and unsaleable in the hot weather. Also he found that many people buy their non-perishable groceries at the chain stores and expect the regular man to carry fruit and vegetables for them. He discovered that trade in country towns is shot to pieces by mail-order houses and chain stores. He had always dealt with one grocer for everything and supposed others did the same. He learned about bad debts, and could see from his window people who owed him money planking down cash in the chain stores because they had to. The lovely big house that went with the store became a nightmare for his wife to care for, besides the expense of upkeep, for she had to help in the store right along. They could not afford to hire high-priced incompetent clerks, even with doubling their money on peas and onions, as their friends reminded them continually they were doing. Many a night his wife remained up till midnight trying to save the good parts of spoiling fruit. He, himself sorted berries until he never wanted to eat any more all his life. Besides all that he had to subscribe to this, contribute to that, until the burden grew to be a real menace. "You have to be a good fellow," the committee announces as it waits on the merchants.

Now the writer wishes to know of a farmer who wishes to trade a well-improved farm in a good location—for that is what he left—for a large fine looking brick house and grocery store in a thriving town. His reason for wishing to trade is that his health demands that he go back to the country as quickly as possible. He doesn't wish to be asked anything about taxes or bad debts or fifteen hours of daily work. He wants to "swap jobs" with a farmer who is "tired of the drudgery of farming" and all that he, himself, used to complain about. He has tried being a middleman long enough.—Farmer's Sun.

FISTIC CHAMPIONSHIP

Grantland Rice in trying to pick the next top liner in pugilism faces a bewildering situation. He says "When Gene Tunney carved up Tom Heeney in one of the most scientific clinics in the history of the game, his abrupt retirement into private life, left one of the greatest muddles pugilism has known. Kings and presidents come and pass but when a heavyweight champion quits unbeaten baffled bewilderment falls on civilization." He chooses seven contenders to the title: (1) John Risko, a game willing fighter, but in more than a hundred rounds, he never left a headache; (2) Jack Sharkey, the best prospect of the lot. When he wants to fight. He is excitable, moody and temperamental—undependable; (3) Tom Heeney, a game fighter and a fair boxer. In five fights not one exciting round; (4) Paulino Uzcudun, another Heeney but more colorful; (5) George Godfrey, big and strong and as aggressive as the family cow; (6) Jack Delaney, all through and washed up; (7) Tommy Loughran, he can't hit hard enough to dent the cuticle of a custard pie. But he has speed, brains and skill. If he could hit he would be another Tunney; (8) Jack Dempsey, always dangerous. He can still whip a Heeney who will mix it, but a good boxer could jab him to death. There may be a champion in sight but not for any big guarantee. And not for any $40 ringside seat or $25 ringside seat with all the bally-hoo any six promoters can churn up. At that Mr. Tunney was never as popular as he should have been. The last gate was $600,000. A year or two more of it and our heavyweight champion would earn no more than the President of the United States.

YUKON GAME WARDENS

Nine men serve as game wardens for the Yukon—an area one fifth as large as the United States—and they enforce the law. They have had to fight the prejudice of the professional hunter who looks upon all game as his and resents any regulations. To police the territory it has been divided into nine districts, the smallest 360 miles across, the biggest 1600 miles long. Under unregulated conditions, the fur supply was visibly dwindling. So in 1925 regulations were established with closed season on marten and beaver and reduced bag limits on others. Convictions for violations resulted in 96 per cent wins for the wardens with heavy penalties. Later the regulations were strengthened by a rule requiring every legally taken beaver and marten to be presented for inspection and an affidavit taken on the legality of the catch. Though the dangers of travel are great yet the wardens are ever active. Lately they have taken to flying and several air lines are in operation. The introduction of reindeer into Alaska has greatly lessened game hunting amongst Eskimo and Indian.

There was a young man from the West
Who loved a fair maiden with zest;
So hard did he press her,
To make her say "Yes sir,"
That he broke three cigars in his vest.

FRENCH FOLK-SONG

In a recent article on Canadian Folk Songs in the New York Times, the history of French-Canadian folk songs is traced for three centuries back, to the present day. In the Canadian backwoods and in the habitation farmhouse, or amongst the fishing fleets of Gaspe, these songs are today sung, practically unchanged for 300 years. In the article, tribute is paid to Murray Gibbons and M. Barbeau, for translating so many of these chansons into English. Six thousand of these songs have been collected in the National Museum at Ottawa. And every year there are Spring music festivals held in Quebec to popularize and perpetuate the folk song. The Canadian National Museum the National Gallery and the Archives of Canada are back of these festivals.

THE "PLANT PILL"

A "plant pill" has been perfected by Dr. Gericks of California, which when dropped into a bottle of water will keep roses, sweet peas, etc. blooming in the house through winter months. In the case of roses, cuttings may be taken from the garden in August and placed in a two quart jar. The open top is covered with cardboard, through which the stem of the cutting is passed. The jar is half filled with water, and is maintained at the original height—never changed. The pill is dropped in. The roots will grow and the plant bloom at a period from sixty days to six months hence, depending on the variety of flower. Sweet peas planted in jars in the same way in October will bloom in January. Zinnias, asters, pansies, also. Indoor vegetable gardens may produce all year. It is expected that this "plant pill" will be on the market soon, when it may be procured at any drug store.

USING MUSCLES

You can't stoop and expect your arm muscles, assisted by the back, to lift heavy weights. The weight at the end of the arms is at the end of a long lever with a fulcrum at the hips, and the mechanical disadvantage is terrific. In order to pick up a heavy weight, you should squat with the back kept straight, grasp the object and then straighten. The whole work is done by the legs and the leg muscles are designed for just such work. The strongest muscles in the body are the thighs, and next come the shoulder muscles. All heavy labor, should thus be handled by thighs and shoulder. Another rule is to get as close to the object as possible, as in working with a wheelbarrow. Get the weight on top of your body if possible. A sack of flour, heavy plank, etc., should always be carried across the shoulder. Always use the thigh muscles. Few people know even how to get out of a chair rightly. They depend on their small muscled arms to lift them out. Instead, the feet should be almost directly under the body, and then it needs only a slight forward movement of the trunk and a straightening of the legs, to be in upright position. Some small people, by using the strong muscles can accomplish much more than larger ones.

LONDON POLICE FORCE

London celebrated the hundredth anniversary of the organization of the London Police Force, directed from Scotland Yard. In congratulating the Police Force on its success figures were produced to show that in a year when 333,083 crimes were reported in New York, only 15,662 were reported in London. There are few unsolved murders in London. Yet the London policeman does not carry a gun, arguing that a crook will not shoot unless the state sets a shooting example. Another deterrent from crime, is the fact that a real criminal need never look to a mauling jury for freedom. It is all over, and sentence passed, while American criminal lawyers are talking technicalities.

TRIALS OF A WEEKLY

The editor of the Cardston News, writes an editorial in this week's issue, which cannot fail to strike a responsive chord in the bosom of every newspaper staff that goes to press on a Thursday. His wild wail over last minute advertising, is the weekly experience of all too many newspaper offices. Everything to do on the one day, and whatever happens the paper must be out.

He says in part "Everybody has a jinx day—Ours is Thursday. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday all things run smoothly in most small town newspaper plants. From the editor down, those days are filled with activity, but with an optimism prevades the plant which points to better times, to increased circulation, to more advertising.

On Thursday morning things begin to happen. First we find that Laidlaw's ad. never arrived until late Wednesday night and that at least three other ads. are not even in the office. We begin to rush things. The Post Office we know closes promptly at 7 p.m. and we have 4,000 runs of the paper to get out today, and it is even now 11 o'clock, and not a wheel turning. We begin to wonder why in—people can't be on time with their copy—we suddenly hear the phone ring. We compose ourselves and listen to a long-winded tale about an editorial that ought to be written this week bawling somebody out properly but which "I forgot to mention until now"—Thursday noon it is, and not a wheel turned yet—no dinner today.

Well, by one o'clock the big ad. is set up and the others are in, and we have the first forms ready for the press. Then when the forms are put to bed, and a proof is taken, we discover that the Theatre cut was cut crooked—won't print up, that a rule is high and cuts the paper, or that some other detail has gone wrong, all of which requires from 1/2 to 1 1/2 hours to remedy. At last we're off and—the press breaks. It is more than nerves can stand—the whole force gets fired—(but we hire them again immediately when we realize our dilemma) and so the jinx has his fun.

Having had such fun, the miracle happens. The machinery moves and all is well. The News of the week comes off the press—black on white—local news, intimate, personal, almost part of us. See how caressingly Fred passes his fingers over it. See how we all glance kindly at the printed pages coming off the whirling cylinders. How musical to our ears are the resounding swishes and clangs of the press as it trundles backwards and forwards each time delivering a neatly printed sheet. No wonder that when the day is done, we reverently place one copy in the News archives, dedicate another Thursday to Clio, the Muse of History, and, sticking an extra copy in our hip pockets, we wend our divers ways home where each in his own way hunts through the paper for other evidences of the work of the jinx on that hectic day we call Thursday down at the News office.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is just 400 years since any of my predecessors reached my age.—Archbishop of Canterbury.

"The nations will beat their swords into plow shares, when, like Tunney, they get all they want." A very true remark.

A new U.S. cruiser is to be named "Chicago." Who was it said "end fighting."

IT'S OF NO USE TO ARGUE

A former Lieutenant-Governor of the States of Pennsylvania, attending a luncheon at the Toronto Exhibition last week, made a speech and got off this precious bit: "It was the Pennsylvania soldiers and the United Marines who joined the allied armies after they had fought for four years that gave the Germans their first taste of defeat. We ended the world's war, and our country is now leading the way in establishing peace." The London Advertiser, referring to the incident, calls the speaker a braggart. There are a few other things he should be called, beginning with ignoramus. How some fellows manage to know so little and live is one of the wonders of the age.—Goderich Signal.

IN A LIGHTER VEIN

The tragedy of the flea, is that he knows for a certainty that all of his children will go to the dogs.

Visiting relative—"And when was the baby born?" Modern Father—"Between the second payment on the radio and the tenth on the car."

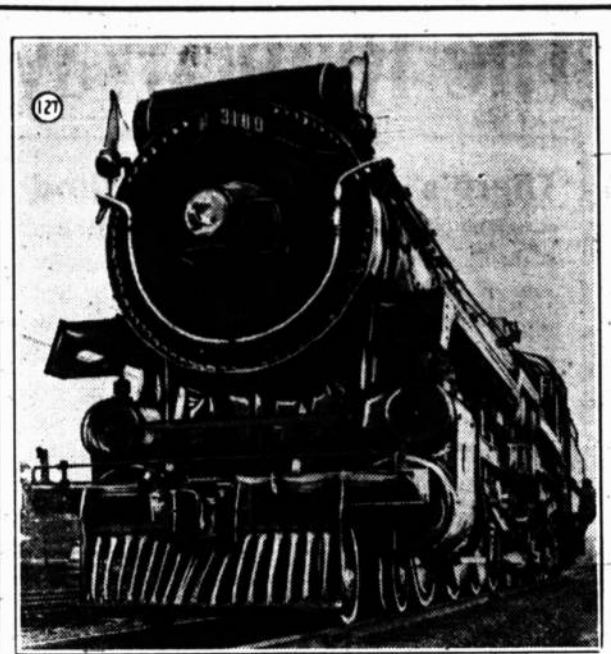

"My advice to you," said the baseball manager, when he gave the rookie shortstop his release, "is to join one of the 20,000 leagues under the sea."

A Scots boy asked his father—"Father, what's the difference between Scotsmen and Englishmen?" "Well, laddie," said his father, "I canna just say, but they have na been the same since Bannockburn."

A henpecked husband asked the butcher "What kind of meat have you this morning?" "Some steak, as tender as a woman's heart," said the butcher. "I'll take sausage," said the customer with a sigh.

THIRTY FOOT PETITION

W. S. Deisman and F. R. Brason, officials of the Alberta Motorist Association, have returned from touring the roads of the Western Provinces, and are leaving Calgary again using as their objective Medicine Hat and Macleod. At these points, meetings of motor owners have been arranged. The purpose of this tour is to secure a 30 foot petition of western signers asking the Dominion authorities for a sum of four million dollars yearly for a ten year term, this sum to be expended entirely on the opening of new roads and improvement of existing ones throughout the West. The petition is to be completed by October 10, when the convention of the Canadian Automobile Association meets in Winnipeg. The Motor Association of the western provinces will unite in presenting the petition to Ottawa. The Alberta Motor Association are also preparing "road logs" of the province, with dangerous spots on provincial highways properly marked. These markings include level crossings, hair pin bends, S curves, sharp turns and other places that offer any possible hazard.

EMPIRE'S LARGEST

Built from designs originated in the motive power department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the 3100 is the largest passenger locomotive in the British Empire and the most powerful. Canadian workmen turned her out of Angus Shops, a graceful mechanism nearly one hundred feet long, with a tractive effort of 60,800 pounds equal to 3,885 horse power. The use of Canadian nickel steel parts has reduced its weight to 42,400 pounds, but the high ratio of tractive power to weight is a notable feature of the new engine. The boiler pressure, 275 pounds, is the highest of any locomotive in Canada. The eight drive wheels have a diameter of 75 inches and the cast nickel steel cylinders are 25 1/4 inches by 30 inches. The length over all of the new Canadian Pacific engine is 97 feet 5 inches. Two have been built at present for the Toronto-Montreal run.

VOCATIONAL GUIDE

With a view to giving trials in Alberta to the ways in which children may be given advice as to vocational questions, the Research Committee of the Alberta Teachers Alliance has undertaken to devote considerable attention to securing information. This investigation to be followed later by constructive guidance has been caused by the realization that every high school has its quota of "dud" pupils who do not measure up to the standard of normal accomplishment. Either the student is not interested in the nature of high school work, or he lacks the mental equipment. Many children who appear to be lazy could be induced to work if the right stimulus were found, or if they were given work which they could do. It is an economic administration for school boards to allow the schools to be cluttered up with uninterested and incapable children. And parents who insist on such children "getting an education" very often have a mistaken idea of the word education.

The trouble seems to lie mostly in the lack of facilities for advising pupils as to the type of training suitable to their needs and capabilities. It is for the purpose of paving the way for an expert board to be in a position to give such advice that the Research committee is at work. D. L. Shorecliffe, M.A., of Edmonton, is the chairman.

A travelling man put up in a cheap little hotel with very thin partitions. All night long he listened to a demonstration of plain and fancy snoring from the room next to him. At the height of strangulation and agony a sudden silence fell. Not another snore. From a nearby room he heard a weary voice say "Thank goodness, he's dead."

ARGUMENT FOR PROHIBITION

A desperate young man, whose name we must withhold, writes to us: "I am engaged. The girl has changed her mind. So have I. But if I admit I want to quit, she will hold me to it. If I let her think I am still crazy about her, she will not throw me down for fear of ruining my life. What shall I do?" This is easy. Insist on the word "obey" in the marriage service. Clap your hands over your ears when she sings. Eat onions. Eat with your knife. Refuse to walk down Main Street with her. Snuffle and lose your handkerchief and snuffle. Buy the cheapest of everything for her. Get your driver's license cancelled for two years. Go bankrupt."

Hon. Frank Oliver has completed his term as a member of the Railway Commission. He was a splendid official.

THE SUNSET

I gaze from my upper window
To the West toward the setting sun;
The vision that meets the wondering eye
Is a truly glorious one.

The snow-clad peaks of the Rockies,
Are etched in most heavenly blue,
The fleecy clouds that float above
Are of many and varied hue.

Palest rose, crimson and purple;
A setting exquisite, sublime!
For the great golden orb of brightness
That fadeth from sight for a time.

'Tis a touch from the Land of "The Master"
A glimpse of the wonders above,
A promise to us of a future
Filled with glory and beauty and love.

—S. E. Kiser

A few minutes is nothing compared to a human life.—Notice to Motorists
What do you think of this here evolution? It's a good idea—but can they enforce it?

ALBERTA NEWSPAPERMEN AT CONVENTION

Interesting Review of Important Event Held at Lethbridge

Conventions, it would appear, are quite the proper thing. They are sought by the cities and sanctioned by everybody. So it is that the weekly newspaper men assemble themselves on occasion to discuss the charge of so much per inch for advertising and consider the thousand things which are vital to men of the type. Strange are the vicissitudes of the community editor that make of him a convention delegate on week and a doctor patient the next. Thus has there been a delay of making records in this medium of an interesting and important event, in connection with which Lethbridge, the city of the south, has by cheerful and generous hospitality clinched the friendship and merited the praise of an appreciative people. Definitely, this event was the annual convention of the Alberta Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association.

Vulcan had its representation on this occasion, and when The Advocate man made a start on the journey south he was pleased to convey the greetings of Mr. Jimmy Ross to former business associates in the city, and to carry messages of remembrance to Odd Fellows, Masons and Elks who had made friends in Vulcan on the occasion of lodge visits to this town. When on a trip of this kind the first courtesy that comes to the newspaper man is from the transportation companies, and in this case the Canadian Pacific Railway. After boarding the Spokane flyer at about one-in-the-morning, and when the train had passed out of the brilliancy of the Vulcan lighting system, the first greeting was from the conductor, the courteous and genial Sam Hays, who was prompted by the peculiar tickets collected to make the observation that he had on board some eighteen or twenty more passengers of the kind. Not much can be seen from the car window at night, but the change of the year was quite apparent, for the several towns along the line, instead of the former station oil lamps, are now indicated by a community of electric lights. Thanks to the enterprise of the Calgary Power Company. There was a slow-down as the train sped on in the night, and this proved to be for crossing the new steel bridge at Carmangay, which is just at completion, and which in some respects will share to a degree the world distinction which attaches to the wonderful steel bridge at Lethbridge. Very few railway divisions have bridges of the length and height of these two on the Aldersyde branch. Keeping pace with the railway bridge improvement, highway authorities are constructing a fine new section of the circuitous road route through the well known coulee at this point. Kipp station has disappeared and the trainman call is now "Coalhurst."

The reference to bridges revives a memory of the writer, who was one of an excursion party of three or four hundred from High River, and guests of the Lethbridge Board of Trade, who had the distinction of being first to cross over the new bridge on a passenger train. All were taken over and on the slopes to the river on the other side were entertained to refreshments of a variety and satisfying kind. After that there was a lacrosse match of the kind that has made the old days famous. Gen. (Doc.) Stewart is one well remembered of the Lethbridge stick artists.

Just a block or two in an auto and the destination was reached, being the new Marquis hotel, the convention headquarters, and certainly with appointments and service suitable to the event. Registration being complete at the appointed hour, the first session opened, with President F. Turnbull presiding. The civic address of welcome was presented by His Worship Mayor Borrowman, who has the distinction of being the first mayor under the new form of government adopted recently by the city. He was brief in words, but chief of the citizens who were indeed long on courtesy and hospitality. Reports of officers and a discussion of the same, and the appointment of committees, was the business of the session.

The feature of the first session was the appearance and address of Dr. R. C. Wallace, new president of the University of Alberta, among the first which he has been permitted to make since assuming his high responsibilities in the province. It was esteemed as a privilege by Dr. Wallace and as a compliment to the association by the newspaper men. "Democracy and Editors" was the subject of his address, and what he said and the manner in which it was said at once created a fine impression of the man and will command a consideration of views expressed. The weekly papers had a distinct function to perform, that of presenting in a dispassionate and interpretative way the affairs of the community, the nation and the world. It was suggested that the city daily might with advantage make a periodical digest of the rural opinion, political and otherwise, as expressed through the medium of the weekly. It would be informative and would indicate the feelings of the people outside the popular centres. Education did not consist in the teaching of facts alone, for that was the lowest type of education. The idea stressed was to teach people to think for themselves, rather than to be too much the student of the theories of others. This would make democracy safe.

The first afternoon session was confined to talking shop, in the discussion of "Putting the subscription list on a cash basis," by Mr. H. G. McCrea, of Hanna; "Selling commercial printing," by Mr. J. S. Poapst, of Calgary; "Advertising from the merchant's standpoint," by Mr. W. E. Lord, of Red Deer.

The address of Mr. Lord was to a degree unique and altogether frank, and certainly of value to advertiser and publisher, and deservedly appreciated by the hearers. Mr. Lord has been a merchant at Red Deer for years and one of the most successful in the province. His address was based on his period of experience. He defined the necessity of the newspaper in circulation to cover the trading area. Printing of the paper must be clean and plain, and advertising copy closely followed. The publication, without exaggeration, should be a booster for business and the community. Advertising should be regular and consistent, and the content should be a true reflection of the business carried on, with truthfulness as the feature. With but very few exceptions there is no reason for suspension of advertising, as every week and every month creates its demand for something the merchant has to sell. The quotation of prices was commended. Mr. Lord stated that his firm had given a lot of money to the paper in his town, but the paper had made a lot more for the firm. Advertising is a definite and direct benefit to the merchant, the public and the newspaper.

The ride to Raymond was a revelation, and the pleasure was presented by members of the Lethbridge Board of Trade, who provided cars in number and class sufficient to assure comfort and safety. Our party was with Mr. McKay, manager of one of the city banks, with a knowledge of the territory and a kindly disposition to do his bit in the entertainment of the visitors. The trip included a whirl around the drives at the Dominion Experimental Farm, and the circling of the buildings, where industry, utility and beauty are in splendid combination. Mr. Fairfield, who has for years been in charge of this station, has at times visited Vulcan in his official capacity and otherwise, and his presence at the convention was appreciated. On the way is the famous jail, and we who were not losing opportunity to say a word now and then to the good of Vulcan were required to suppress the thought that Vulcan at times has had its representatives in that institution. There is an extensive farm in connection and the men on the place are good farmers, at least the many fields are producing great crops. Irrigation ditches are numerous in these parts. Grain fields evidenced a variation in crops, and there was a diversity in harvesting methods, ranging from cutting and stooking to straight combining. Nearing Raymond, wheat gives place to beets in many a field, and crops of the latter are looking fine. These beets are the basic of an industry of which all had gladly accepted the opportunity to learn.

Sugar is sugar, and after the trip to Raymond many of the party went home to look at the sack to see if they were using the product of the factory which they had inspected. The large party was divided into groups, and each group with a company or factory official, was directed along the process from the beet to the finished sugar, and in the course there was to the layman a maze of mechanism, reaching from a low basement to a series of elevators that made the sightseers dizzy. A running description of the methods of manufacture was made interesting to the visitors, all of whom were amazed at the immensity of the plant required in the production of one of the most used foodstuffs. Sugar is one of the most common of commodities, but how few there are who in the least comprehend its making. There is something great to see even in southern Alberta. Out of town some distance, the factory has a location of isolation, and this but gives view to its gigantic proportions and the mighty smokestack towers to a height that makes it visible for miles. The factory is now being made ready for the season's run, which will commence early in October. Reception of the visitors at the factory was most cordial and each was presented with a gift box of icing sugar and a souvenir sack of granulated. We sent our sack to a friend in Ontario.

It was timely that a delightful banquet should follow an exhilarating journey through the country, and this was tendered by the owners and management of The Lethbridge Herald, and was the good-will offering of the daily to the weeklies. It was appropriate also that the chief articles on the card were corn on the cob from fields in the territory, browned potatoes out of the hills in local gardens, and fried chicken selected from flocks in the neighborhood. The menu was different, with the added excellence, and it was indeed a merry throng that did eat and drink and smoke with the management and staff of the southern daily. The menu cards, a work of art and a product of The Herald printery, included also the program, and the style and material were original and decidedly interesting.

Senator Buchanan, chief of the organization, presided, and he certainly is a champion at a function of the kind. Mayor Borrowman extended the welcome and greetings of the city in a short and witty speech, and Mr. Houston, representing the board of trade, in an interesting manner reviewed the history and the enterprise of the city and district, the latest accomplishment cited being the Marquis hotel, which had made possible the standard of the event then being held. Dr. Wallace was heard in an address that would certainly accomplish the object of introducing the University of Alberta to the people of Alberta. This manner of man, with a style all his own and a theme of democracy presented in a new way, made an impression that will surely secure support to the provincial institution and to its new president. Mr. A. B. Hogg, barrister, was announced as a layman x-raying the press, and with a humor that was delightful he made an examination that revealed many a good thing and suggested a method of avoiding that which might not count for best. Group singing and orchestra music interspersed the entertaining and instructive talks, and the stories told and a song number contributed only by the Scotch present, made entertainment extraordinary. It was more than eleven when all joined hands.

President Turnbull, of the Newspaper Association, in acknowledging the several messages of greeting, and the exceeding great hospitality of The Lethbridge Herald, took occasion also to pay just tribute to that publication as a paper and business organization, and the guests present gave hearty endorsement. There is not in all Canada a like constituency with a daily of equal excellence, and that a high standard is being so well maintained and a plant and business so splendidly developed, is evidence of support given by a city and district to an enterprise recognized as a community asset of great value. It can here be noted that during the entire period of the convention members of this organization were in attendance and doing the city a service by giving attention and direction to visitors within its limits.

The second morning session of the convention was all inside business of the trade, discussions resulting from addresses presented. "Newspaper management" was the subject well and interestingly covered by Mr. F. F. Payne, of The Nelson News, and "Selling local advertising" was dealt with by Mr. O. L. Spencer, of The Calgary Herald.

The afternoon session was the wind-up of what was perhaps the most successful convention under these auspices. "Goodwill" was the subject of an address by Senator Buchanan, and force was given to his statements by the kindly performances of the man previous to his utterances. To use a common expression, he practises what he preaches. Resolutions were considered, reports of committees received, and unfinished business given attention. Then adjournment.

One of the pleasing and concluding features of the convention was a presentation. The editors, in the good old-fashioned way, had chipped in to express their appreciation of the voluntary service of one of their number. Mr. H. McCrea, of Hanna, has been efficient as secretary and generous in labor for the craft, and he was presented with a silver tea set.

Following are the officers of the Alberta Division, Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, 1928-29: President, Red Deer; Advocate, First Vice President, Innisfail; Province, Second Vice President, F. Slight, Camrose; Canadian Secretary-Treasurer, H. G. McCrea, Hanna; Herald; Executive, D. O. Wright of Cardston, R. L. King of Claresholm, H. P. Hall of Coleman, W. A. Huntingford of Wainwright, and R. Smith of Westlock.

One of the pleasing functions of the visit to Lethbridge was the afternoon tea given by Mrs. Buchanan to the ladies of the party, on the mezzanine floor of the pretty hotel-Marquis.

Lethbridge is a city that is steadily in every way becoming bigger and better. Its industry increases, and business and residence places improve, and the most recent building enterprises include a new collegiate institute that approaches completion. Merchants and business people make an attractive display of their wares, streets are clean and tidy, police are courteous and attentive, and there is a general demeanor of its citizenry that makes the visitor comfortable. The centre of beauty is, of course, the Galt Gardens, that have national fame, and from which radiate the streets and avenues that carry to a degree throughout the city the loveliness at the heart.

The Vulcan representative when there received the greetings of Constable Basil Davies, and had a hello with "Happy" Engle, another of the force who is known here; dropped in to the Elks' club, and called on C. C. McCreery of the Pyramid Motors. We located Miss Tena McTaggart, who is employed with a photographer and has a splendid position, and discovered that her employer was an acquaintance of ours down in Ontario more than twenty years ago. Saw Miss Dorothy McQueen at a distance, and ran across Johnny the barber, who was with Geo. Pettman last winter. Jimmie Rennie is busy with his boxing bouts, but did not come around with any message for Vulcan. Caught sight of George Cowgill just going out as trainman on a passenger. Met a Miss Colwell, a teacher, who is a sister of Miss Colwell, teacher at Vulcan. Had speech with Judge Jackson about sports, and his Honor sends regards to Mr. "Andy" Graham.

Those who registered at the convention of the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association follow: E. S. Duncan, Crag and Canyon, Banff; H. T. Halliwell, Coleman Journal, Coleman;

A PUBLIC NECESSITY

Opinion by Justice Ricks of the Supreme Court of Illinois

The business of insurance is the outgrowth of time and the demands and necessities of the public. It extends into and covers almost every branch of business and all the relations of life, and is applied to all the hazards of business in life where a basis of risk and compensation can be estimated. In all the stages of life, from the cradle to the grave, it asserts an interest and offers succor and aid. In the business enterprises, whether by land or sea, in the possessions of men, from a pane of glass to the mansion or the factory, in his undertakings involving every chance, misfortune, moral turpitude or the act of God, it demands admission and promises indemnity, reward or gain. It poses as the faithful and zealous trustee of his earnings and savings and promises to the widow and orphan a guaranty against misery and want. It intercedes between principal and agent, master and servant, contractor and owner, and insures against loss from almost any and every cause. It is a public necessity that deals in its own credit for a cash consideration from the assured, and is stamped with public interest. The C. B. Shimp Land Co. handle all forms of insurance.

It is estimated that the crop yield for the southern portion of Alberta will amount to 40,000,000 bushels. It has been estimated that the total yield for Alberta will be in the neighborhood of 200,000,000 bushels, but some officials say that 180,000,000 bushels will be the extent of the yield.

Calgary expects an acute shortage of housing accommodation this winter. At present only a dozen good houses are for rent. And while several hundred houses are for sale, they are all tenanted. With the fine crops in many parts of the province, it is anticipated that many country people may wish to find winter accommodation in the city, but at present the outlook is poor. House rents are reported to be the highest since war time.

Ontario has probably the best and cheapest rural distribution of hydro on the continent. The province assumes half the cost of erecting rural power poles. Yet it is shown by late figures that only 10,000 farmers in Ontario out of 225,000 are using hydro. Western electrification is likely to be much more rapid. Western farms are larger, and every day new processes and inventions make the use of hydro more inviting and necessary.

It is very important to learn to judge distance in a car. A car going only ten miles an hour travels 14 feet in a second. How can people estimate correctly even a distance of 14 feet? One of the heaviest crops ever taken from the Lethbridge railway division was that of the season just closed, according to final figures of the Canadian Pacific. Despite the unfavorable harvesting weather last season the spring of this season this season saw record shipments. Over 43,000,000 bushels of grain went to terminal elevators from the Lethbridge railway division alone, this large increase of 17,286,000 bushels over the previous year being made up as follows: Wheat 40,353,000 bushels, and oats 2,785,000 bushels, increase of 15,019,000 bushels, and 2,267,000 bushels, respectively.

After two years experimenting in the problems of drying tough and damp wheat, without injury to its milling and baking content, the National Research Council this week announced that their laboratories had completed a satisfying process. With regard to the storage of grain, experimental results show that sound grain, stored during the winter in damp condition, does not deteriorate. This has resulted in the finding that Parker's Marquis and Hard Federation are inferior in baking and milling quality to Marquis.

THE MARQUIS HOTEL

The Marquis hotel is, as good as the wheat. Lethbridge is justly proud of a house that Lethbridge built, and the guests who have measured its service and have enjoyed its comforts and hospitality are those who give it praise. The photo which embellishes the front page of this issue of The Advocate conveys better than words an idea of the size and type and beauty of the building, the cost of construction of which was $275,000. The large proportion of this amount was contributed by the citizens of the city, making it a community enterprise. The house was opened in the month of May, and has since been serving a steadily increasing patronage. It is appointed and equipped in the best known to hotel construction, and has all that which features the hotels of the greater centres, but splendidly and consistently sized to the demands and the requirements of the constituency of which it is already the popular centre. The beauty of its interior is in keeping with the commanding attractiveness of the exterior, and with the competent management, there is presented at this hostelry the satisfying combination of service and comfort and hospitality.
